RUBBER COMPANY URGING EMPLOYEES TO JOIN MILITIA

Newtown Concern Announces Readiness to Aid in Work
for Preparedness.

(Special to the Farmer.)

Newtown, June 25.—A wedding of more than ordinary interest was celebrated at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Botasford of Botasford, at 4 p. m., Wednesday, June 23, when their daughter, Miss Clara E. Botasford, was joined in wedlock to William J. Nichols, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Nichols of Stepaney. Rev. A. H. Boutwell of Danbury, a cousin of the groom, performed the ceremony while the attendant of the groom was Frank Hinderer of Bridgeport. Miss Mary Botasford, a cousin of the bride, was bridesmaid. Both were charmingly attired and the floral decorations in the parlor a bower of beauty. Miss Bertha Nichols, sister of the groom, played the wedding march as the bridal party took position. The young couple were recipients of many gifts including substantial checks. The congratulations and good-wishes were over, Mr. and Mrs. Nichols slipped away by auto for an extended trip through the Berkshire Hills. St. John the Baptist day, will be observed by Hiram Lodge, No. 18, F. & A. M., at the Congregational church, Sunday evening, June 27, at 7:30, when appropriate services will be held. Rev. T. J. Lee, pastor of the church, will preach the sermon and Rev. James H. George and Rev. Chas. A. Tibbatts will take part in the services. Visiting brethren, and the general public are invited to attend. At Knoll field, Sunday afternoon, at 3 o'clock, the North End ball team of Bridgeport, will meet the Sandy Hook nine, in what promises to be a hard fight from start to finish. The mid-summer meeting of the Housatonic branch of the Universal Sunshine society, will be held Saturday, June 26, at 3 p. m., at the home of Mrs. John Hoyt on Mill Hill. As this will be the last meeting during the season, a good attendance of the members and sympathizers with the cause is looked for. William T. Cole, president of the Fabric Fire Hose Co., a subsidiary of the Rubber Goods Manufacturing Co., gives through the press public notice of the policy of this concern to lend its full support to strengthening our nation's military defenses in every possible way. In furtherance of this endeavor, the company will encourage all of its employees to join the militia and serve in some company of the National Guards. As a general policy, the company promises "to pay members of the militia their full pay during the annual absence at camp, and will endeavor to arrange their work and duties so that all reasonable calls upon their time by military obligations can be readily met." Contrary to its policy in the past and in view of the uncertain times, the concern feels that it has an obligation to do its share toward assisting in the defense of the country. This patriotic outburst from President Cole has aroused intense interest among our townspeople, and various are the interpretations placed upon it by the peace-loving inhabitants of Newtown. There is no military company here since old training days and even the "Wide Awakes," the semi-military organization of the early 80's, is a dim memory to the oldest residents. So far no volunteers have spoken in response to this appeal and it is believed a recruiting office here would have little success in the soldier line. Newtown is for peace and for President Wilson.

Miss Beatrice Kohler returned to her home Sunday from St. Vincent's hospital where she had been for the past two months after an operation for appendicitis, from which she did not recover readily. The Tashua school with Miss Florence B. Dickinson of Woodbridge, teacher, held its closing exercises on the veranda of A. Wildman's residence. Mothers and friends were present to enjoy the program, which was well rendered. There were more than 30 numbers on the program, which consisted of dialogues, songs and recitations, and mandolin solos by Miss Maud Mallett. A picnic was held on the lawn and the tables set under the shade of the apple trees. Miss Dickinson will return for the autumn term. In the seventh grade six pupils received certificates to enter eighth grade in Bridgeport in the autumn. They are Dorothy Seeley, Maud Mallett, Eva Swezey, Stella Kohler, Jennie Mallett, and Ernest Cotton. PETTY BUSINESS DISHONESTY.

A friend, speaking the other day of his visit to a certain city, remarked incidentally that he spent an evening on a trip to a moral amusement park. He was led to take the trip, which was one of some distance, by hearing that a certain famous band was playing there. He asked an agent of the park company at the city terminal, if the band played a concert that evening. The agent said yes. Arrived at the park, he found the band never played evenings. The agent had simply believed it good policy to lie to secure one fare. It is significant that the traveler, on looking up the advertisements of the park, found that they merely advertised day time concerts. This shows incidentally how much more truthful advertising is than the word of individual employees. If an employee finds it expedient to explain it on the ground that he did not understand. A false advertisement can not thus be explained away. It is a satisfaction to observe that the Associated Advertising clubs, in their convention at Chicago, have again given great prominence to the idea of the necessity of truthful advertising. If there is a yellow streak of misrepresentation running through day by day business, it is much less present in advertising. There is an old saw from the playground, "Cheats, cheats, never beates." Every business firm should realize what a miserable policy it is for employees to falsify. That man who was disappointed on his band concert probably has told a dozen people how he was fooled. The incident was a slight one, yet people who heard it would reach the conclusion that the resort was a fake that did not live up to its agreements. It is not enough for corporations and business men to condemn dishonest statements on the part of their employees when they learn of them. They should also warn them in advance of the irritation and hostility that such methods cause in the public mind. Proposed increases in freight rates on coal over roads operating from the Illinois mines to Chicago and points in Wisconsin and North Dakota were suspended until December 29 by the Interstate Commerce Commission.
